Volunteer

Description

Volunteering is a noble deed. You can make a difference by volunteering your time or expertise for society's betterment. The act of volunteering contributes to the community in which you live and makes a difference in the lives of the people around you. Often, volunteering can lead to new skills and experiences, and some people can even get a job afterward as a result.

At VAAG Health Foundation we are looking for individuals who are passionate, highly professional, dynamic, self-motivated with a desire to help the underprivileged and the needy.

Responsibilities

- As a volunteer, you will assist in identifying patients who suffer from brain and spinal cord injuries and need home treatment and rehabilitation (including a home ventilator).
- As part of this role, you will also coordinate with VAAG and patients' families to provide resources and support to the families so that they can carry on with their daily lives.
- We are looking for a passionate, dynamic volunteer with a desire to help the underprivileged and the needy.
